1 INTRODUCTION

An important year for Bob Dylan including the announcement of The Bob Dylan Archive in Tulsa, Oklahoma, two record releases, Fallen Angels and the mammoth 36-CD Live 1966 Recordings, continued touring, a new exhibition The Beaten Path at The Halcyon Gallery in London and of course the Nobel Prize in Literature.

2 2016 AT A GLANCE

3 THE 2016 CALENDAR

- 10 January David Bowie dies in New York City at the age of sixty-nine,
- February Dylan and the current touring band record 30 new songs associated with Frank Sinatra in Capitol Studio C in Los Angeles.
- April It is announced that Bob Dylan has sold his private archive, said to contain more than 6000 items, to The George Kaiser Family Foundation in Tulsa, Oklahoma. Different parts of The Bob Dylan Archive will be open to visitors in open exhibitions and to students and researchers.
- 4 April A 16-date tour in six Japanese cities starts in Tokyo. Same band and pretty much the same set-list as during the last tour.
- 5 April The second show features the live premiere of That Old Black Magic. The set-list from this show was repeated during the rest of the tour,
- 20 May Fallen Angels, the second album with songs recorded by Frank Sinatra is released. More info in section 4.1.
- 4-5 June Dylan resumes The Never Ending Tour with two shows in Woodinville, Washington. The shows structure remains intact and I Could Have Told You, another song associated with Frank Sinatra, is debuted.
- 28 June First live performance of How Deep Is The Ocean in Kettering, Ohio
- 3 July First live performance of That Old Feeling in Mashantucket, Connecticut
- 17 July The US Summer tour ends with a show in Gilford, New Hampshire
- 7 October After taking time off for other activities Bob Dylan resumes touring with a lengthy United States Fall tour. The first and third shows are part of Desert Trip, a two-weekends extra-vaganza at the Empire Polo Club in Indio, California. The set is somewhat shorter than usual and is the first concert without “Sinatra-covers” since Los Angeles, California, 25 October 2014. The Rolling Stones opened.
- 13 October The Announcement of the 2016 Nobel Prize in Literature to Bob Dylan, is presented by Professor Sara Danius, Permanent Secretary of the Swedish Academy.
- Meanwhile Dylan plays in Las Vegas, but fails to acknowledge the Nobel Prize. In fact he will not do so for another two weeks, causing both astonishment and irritation. The set contains just one Sinatra song this evening
- 14 October Another show in Indio, with The Rolling Stones as opening act. First live performance of Like A Rolling Stone since Rome, Italy, 6 November 2013.
- 27 October The set-list now contains five Sinatra songs.
- 28 October Dylan and the band record Once Upon A Time in Birmingham, Alabama, for the NBC special, “Tony Bennett Celebrates 90: The Best Is Yet to Come” broadcast 20 November.
- 5 November The exhibition The Beaten Path opens at The Halcuon Gallery in London. A number of paintings, drawings, watercolours and acrylic works, showing Bob Dylan’s view of the American landscape.
- 7 November Leonard Cohen dies in Los Angeles at the age of eighty-two.
- 11 November Release of the 36-CD box The 1966 Live Recordings. For further details please see section 4.2.
- 12 November Starting with the show in Asheville, North Carolina, the “Sinatra-ratio” is usually 1/3. i.e. 7 songs!
- 23 November Last show of the Fall tour is played in Fort Lauderdale, Florida. The short intermission after nine songs was abandoned during this tour.

10 December During the Nobel Prize ceremony in The Stockholm Concert Hall the presentation speech is delivered by Horace Engdahl. Later during the banquet in Stockholm City Hall Azita Raji, the United States Ambassador to Sweden, reads a speech by Bob Dylan, and Patti Smith sings A Hard Rain's A-Gonna Fall accompanied by the Royal Stockholm Philharmonic Orchestra. She is so moved by the occasion that she has to restart the performance in the middle of the first verse and then delivers a magnificent version which draws the longest applause of the evening.

4 NEW RELEASES

4.1 Fallen Angels

This album containing another set of songs from 40' and 50's was recorded in the famous Studio B in Capitol Recording Studios in Los Angeles, California, at the same occasion as Shadows In The Night. Frank Sinatra once recorded his great Capitol albums in the 50s in this studio.

All songs, except Skylark, were once recorded by Frank Sinatra.

Dylan is accompanied by his regular road band and three horn players on one of the tracks.

Fallen Angels was released on 20 May 2016. For further details please refer to the session page for February March 2014.

4.2 The 1966 Live Recordings

4.2.1 Background

This release can be seen both as a companion piece to Bootleg Series vol 12. The Cutting Edge and another 50th Anniversary collection to pass these recordings in the public Domain. The release consists of 36-CD box and also a 2 LP vinyl release.

This release was partly like the three previous years, triggered by European copyright laws which would pass these recordings onto public domain unless Sony claims ownership by releasing them one way or another.

Insightful liner notes are written by Clinton Heylon.

5 THE NOBEL PRIZE

5.1 The Announcement

The Announcement of the 2016 Nobel Prize in Literature to Bob Dylan, was presented by Professor Sara Danius, Permanent Secretary of the Swedish Academy, on 13 October 2016:

“The Nobel Prize in Literature for 2016 is awarded to Bob Dylan for having created new poetic expressions within the great American song tradition”.

5.2 The Presentation Speech

The presentation speech was delivered by Swedish Academy member Horace Engdahl in the Stockholm Concert Hall, 10 December.

Your Majesties, Your Royal Highnesses, Your Excellencies, Ladies and Gentlemen,

What brings about the great shifts in the world of literature? Often it is when someone seizes upon a simple, overlooked form, discounted as art in the higher sense, and makes it mutate. Thus, at one point, emerged the modern novel from anecdote and letter, thus arose drama in a new age from high jinx on planks placed on barrels in a marketplace, thus songs in the vernacular dethroned learned Latin poetry, thus too did La Fontaine take animal fables and Hans Christian Andersen fairy tales from the nursery to Parnassian heights. Each time this occurs, our idea of literature changes.

In itself, it ought not to be a sensation that a singer/songwriter now stands recipient of the literary Nobel Prize. In a distant past, all poetry was sung or tunefully recited, poets were rhapsodes, bards, troubadours; 'lyrics' comes from 'lyre'. But what Bob Dylan did was not to return to the Greeks or the Provençals. Instead, he dedicated himself body and soul to 20th century American popular music, the kind played on radio stations and gramophone records for ordinary people, white and black: protest songs, country, blues, early rock, gospel, mainstream music. He listened day and night, testing the stuff on his instruments, trying to learn. But when he started to write similar songs, they came out differently. In his hands, the material changed. From what he discovered in heirloom and scrap, in banal rhyme and quick wit, in curses and pious prayers, sweet nothings and crude jokes, he panned poetry gold, whether on purpose or by accident is irrelevant; all creativity begins in imitation.

Even after fifty years of uninterrupted exposure, we are yet to absorb music's equivalent of the fable's Flying Dutchman. He makes good rhymes, said a critic, explaining greatness. And it is true. His rhyming is an alchemical substance that dissolves contexts to create new ones, scarcely containable by the human brain. It was a shock. With the public expecting poppy folk songs, there stood a young man with a guitar, fusing the languages of the street and the bible into a compound that would have made the end of the world seem a superfluous replay. At the same time, he sang of love with a power of conviction everyone wants to own. All of a sudden, much of the bookish poetry in our world felt anaemic, and the routine song lyrics his colleagues continued to write were like old-fashioned gunpowder following the invention of dynamite. Soon, people stopped comparing him to Woody Guthrie and Hank Williams and turned instead to Blake, Rimbaud, Whitman, Shakespeare.

In the most unlikely setting of all - the commercial gramophone record - he gave back to the language of poetry its elevated style, lost since the Romantics. Not to sing of eternities, but to speak of what was happening around us. As if the oracle of Delphi were reading the evening news.

Recognising that revolution by awarding Bob Dylan the Nobel Prize was a decision that seemed daring only beforehand and already seems obvious. But does he get the prize for upsetting the system of literature? Not really. There is a simpler explanation, one that we share with all those who stand with beating hearts in front of the stage at one of the venues on his never-ending tour, waiting for that magical voice. Chamfort made the observation that when a master such as La Fontaine appears, the hierarchy of genres - the estimation of what is great and small, high and low in literature - is nullified. "What matter the rank of a work when its beauty is of the highest rank?" he wrote. That is the straight answer to the question of how Bob Dylan belongs in literature: as the beauty of his songs is of the highest rank.

By means of his oeuvre, Bob Dylan has changed our idea of what poetry can be and how it can work. He is a singer worthy of a place beside the Greeks' ᾠοιδόι, beside Ovid, beside the Romantic visionaries, beside the kings and queens of the Blues, beside the forgotten masters of brilliant standards. If people in the literary world groan, one must remind them that the gods don't write, they dance and they sing. The good wishes of the Swedish Academy follow Mr. Dylan on his way to coming bandstands.

5.3 The Banquet Speech

The Banquet speech by Bob Dylan was given by the United States Ambassador to Sweden Azita Raji, at the Nobel Banquet, 10 December 2016.

Good evening, everyone. I extend my warmest greetings to the members of the Swedish Academy and to all of the other distinguished guests in attendance tonight.

I'm sorry I can't be with you in person, but please know that I am most definitely with you in spirit and honored to be receiving such a prestigious prize. Being awarded the Nobel Prize for Literature is something I never could have imagined or seen coming. From an early age, I've been familiar with and reading and absorbing the works of those who were deemed worthy of such a distinction: Kipling, Shaw, Thomas Mann, Pearl Buck, Albert Camus, Hemingway. These giants of literature whose works are taught in the schoolroom, housed in libraries around the world and spoken of in reverent tones have always made a deep impression. That I now join the names on such a list is truly beyond words.

I don't know if these men and women ever thought of the Nobel honor for themselves, but I suppose that anyone writing a book, or a poem, or a play anywhere in the world might harbor that secret dream deep down inside. It's probably buried so deep that they don't even know it's there.

If someone had ever told me that I had the slightest chance of winning the Nobel Prize, I would have to think that I'd have about the same odds as standing on the moon. In fact, during the year I was born and for a few years after, there wasn't anyone in the world who was considered good enough to win this Nobel Prize. So, I recognize that I am in very rare company, to say the least.

I was out on the road when I received this surprising news, and it took me more than a few minutes to properly process it. I began to think about William Shakespeare, the great literary figure. I would reckon he thought of himself as a dramatist. The thought that he was writing literature couldn't have entered his head. His words were written for the stage. Meant to be spoken not read. When he was writing Hamlet, I'm sure he was thinking about a lot of different things: "Who're the right actors for these roles?" "How should this be staged?" "Do I really want to set this in Denmark?" His creative vision and ambitions were no doubt at the forefront of his mind, but there were also more mundane matters to consider and deal with. "Is the financing in place?" "Are there enough good seats for my patrons?" "Where am I going to get a human skull?" I would bet that the farthest thing from Shakespeare's mind was the question "Is this literature?"

When I started writing songs as a teenager, and even as I started to achieve some renown for my abilities, my aspirations for these songs only went so far. I thought they could be heard in coffee houses or bars, maybe later in places like Carnegie Hall, the London Palladium. If I was really dreaming big, maybe I could imagine getting to make a record and then hearing my songs on the radio. That was really the big prize in my mind. Making records and hearing your songs on the radio meant that you were reaching a big audience and that you might get to keep doing what you had set out to do.

Well, I've been doing what I set out to do for a long time, now. I've made dozens of records and played thousands of concerts all around the world. But it's my songs that are at the vital center of almost everything I do. They seemed to have found a place in the lives of many people throughout many different cultures and I'm grateful for that.

But there's one thing I must say. As a performer I've played for 50,000 people and I've played for 50 people and I can tell you that it is harder to play for 50 people. 50,000 people have a singular persona, not so with 50. Each person has an individual, separate identity, a world unto themselves. They can perceive things more clearly. Your honesty and how it relates to the depth of your talent is tried. The fact that the Nobel committee is so small is not lost on me.

But, like Shakespeare, I too am often occupied with the pursuit of my creative endeavors and dealing with all aspects of life's mundane matters. "Who are the best musicians for these songs?" "Am I recording in the right studio?" "Is this song in the right key?" Some things never change, even in 400 years.

Not once have I ever had the time to ask myself, "Are my songs literature?"

So, I do thank the Swedish Academy, both for taking the time to consider that very question, and, ultimately, for providing such a wonderful answer.

My best wishes to you all,

Bob Dylan

5.4 The Nobel Lecture

Bob Dylan did not attend the Prize Ceremonies or the Nobel Banquet on 10 December 2016 in Stockholm and have not at the time of this writing delivered the Nobel Lecture required to receive the prize money.

7 NEW BOOKS

Selections from the never-ending flood of Dylan books:

Dr. Boris Badenov, KGB: Bob Dylan: America's Cold War Anti-communist Poet

Softback 116 pages.

Or is the author really A.J. Weberman? Hilarious!!

Derek Barker: Humdinger Folk Singer. The Story of Judas and the Communists.

Isis 2016. Softback 81 pages.

This book is a brief social history about the main protagonists involved in in the second American folk revival, with people like Pete Seeger, Alan Lomax and Woody Guthrie, and their links to Communism.

John Bauldie: The Ghost Of Electricity. Bob Dylan's 1966 World Tour.

Isis 2016. Softback 224 pages.

Norstedts 2016. Inbunden 679 sidor.

The Swedish edition contains an introduction in Swedish by Fredrik Virtanen.

This book is also available as English/German bilingual version from Hoffman & Camps.

For some reason a number of songs in this new edition have different lyrics compared to the 2+14 edition. The differences varies from a single word to several lines.

The following seventeen songs have different lyrics:

Tough Mama	Up To Me	The Groom's Still Waiting At The Altar
Don't Fall Apart On Me Tonight	Band Of The Hand	Man In The Long Black Coat
10,000 Men	Love Sick	Tryin' To Get To Heaven
Make You Feel My Love	Things Have Changed	Tweedke Dee &amp; Tweedle Dum
Bye And Bye	Lonesome Day Blues	High Water (For Charley Patton)
Moonlight	Po' Boy

Bob Dylan: The Beaten Path

Covers the Bob Dylan concerts from Newport 1965 to London 1966.

Ola Holmgren: Stickspår. Åtta skäl varför Bob Dylan borde tilldelas Nobelpriset i litteratur.

Ola Holmgren: Sidetracks. Eighth reasons why Bob Dylan should be awarded the Nobel Prize in Literature.

Published in Swedish only. Carlsson Bokförlag 2016. Softback 169 pages.

Ola Holmgren, professor in literature in Lund, analyzes eight songs, that were not included on the regular releases. The songs are Red River Shore (Time Out Of Mind), Born In Time, Series Of Dreams (Oh Mercy), Mississippi (Time Out Of Mind), Abandoned Love (Desire), Angelina, Caribbean Wind (Shot Of Love) and Blind Willie McTell (Infidels). The manuscript was given to one of the author's friends in the Swedish Academy early in 2016. Did this book in fact contributed to the decision to finally award Bob Dylan the Nobel Prize?

I like to think so.

Barney Hoskyns: Small Town Talk. Bob Dylan - The Band - Van Morrison - Jimi Hendrix & Friends In the Wild Years of Woodstock.

Da Capo 2016. Hardback 402 pages.

Daniel Kramer: Bob Dylan- A Year and A Day

Taschen 2016. Hardback 288 pages.

From the publisher's web page:

When photographer Daniel Kramer first met Bob Dylan, the 23-year-old singer was still widely unknown. At their initial meeting in Woodstock, Dylan seemed restless and uncomfortable in front of the camera. Yet over the course of a year and a day, all of that would change. From 1964 to 1965, Kramer's extraordinary access to Bob Dylan on tour, in concert, and backstage, allowed for one of the most mesmerizing portfolios of any recording artist and a stunning document of Dylan breaking through to superstardom.

Chris Morris. Together Through Life

Rothco Press 106. Povket 170 pages.

Veteran journalist and critic Chris Morris looks back at his intense half-century-long relationship with the music of Bob Dylan, viewing the role the singer-songwriter's work has played in his own life. A candid album-by-album exploration of Dylan's catalog through 2016's "Fallen Angels" examines the powerful personal impact of the musician's art.

George Orr: An English Fan's Scrapbook

Blue Blood Productions 2016. Softback 284 pages.

Contains news cuttings, album reviews, some photos together with the author's commentary.

Britta Lee Shain: Seeing The Real You At Last. Life and Love on the road with Bob Dylan

Jabone 2016. Paperback 278 pages.

A kiss-and-tell story from the tours in 1987.

Mike Wyvill & John Wraith: Stay Out Of The Joint. Dylan's 2015 Concerts

Two Riders 2016. Softback 64 pages.
